Quinn might get used to the food, Work Bots, and creating the Blue Brick™ ... but why are children all around him turning blue?

Quinn Fleet, twelve, Packager, has only been at the Work Centre for three days, but he's already seen a Caver run away, faced interrogation, and been made to stand in front of a crowd of children in the Grand Hall to apologize for breaking a Blue Brick™.

That's when he notices that all the children at the Work Centre look so thin, ragged, and blue.

Why are the children turning blue? Why can they make the strange blue spark when they snap their fingers? What's the blue shimmer? And why do a renegade Work Bot and an Officer want Quinn to lead the oldest children, the NewBlues, to the sanctuary of the Quiet, Quiet?

But more than all that, what is the Quiet, Quiet, anyway?

Clementine Liu is off to Shanghai for more fashion, dating, and drama.

Clementine Liu, the stylish Parsons student behind the Bonjour Girl blog, has finished her first drama-filled year at fashion school in New York. Now she's been accepted to participate in an exchange program in Shanghai at the prestigious Condé Nast Center for Fashion and Design. But before Clementine actually sets foot in China, several challenges put her impending departure in jeopardy — like one of her Parsons teachers questioning the entire direction of her blog.

Despite these hurdles, Clementine flies off to Shanghai, where she discovers an exciting new fashion world. While she attempts to survive the cutthroat blogging scene and maintain a long-distance relationship with her New York boyfriend, Clementine meets Henry, a charming local majoring in fashion marketing.

Before she knows it, Clementine's problems are following her halfway across the world. Can she find a way to thrive while staying true to herself?

The X Gang must learn to adapt to a changing world.

A new face of violence and hate has come to Portland, Maine, and the X Gang find themselves targeted once again. It is the early eighties, and the youth subculture they have grown up with is changing. Kurt, X, and the others have concluded, reluctantly, that they are unlikely to ever change the world with their punk anthems, but that the world is still worth changing. The friends lean on each other for the strength to deal with death, addiction, and the sexism and racism they see around them.

Meanwhile, the police and the FBI are on the trail of a killer, and a member of the X Gang holds the secret to the fugitive's sinister motivations. The Resist Stance tells the shocking story of how hatred can become a cause, and how we must stand together against it no matter the cost.

Warren Kinsella is an author, musician, lawyer, and political consultant. His previous books include Recipe for Hate, book one in the X Gang series, and the national bestsellers Web of Hate and Party Favours. Warren plays bass in a punk rock group called SFH and runs the popular blog The War Room. He lives in Toronto.

As crazy as her father's plan sounds, sticking to it is easy for Harbour — until it isn't.

Fourteen-year-old Harbour is living in a tent in a Toronto ravine with her dog, a two-month supply of canned tuna, and an eccentric reading list. She's not homeless, she tells herself. She's merely waiting for her home — a thirty-six-foot sailboat — to arrive with her father at the helm. Why would she worry when the clouds give her signs that assure her she's safe and protected?

When her credit card gets declined, phone contact from her father stops, and summer slips into a frosty fall, Harbour is forced to face reality and accept the help of a homeless girl named Lise to survive on the streets. Lise shows Harbour how to panhandle and navigate the shelter system while trying to unravel Harbour's mysterious past. But if Harbour tells her anything, the consequences could be catastrophic.

Christina Kilbourne is the author of Detached and the award-winning Dear Jo. Her writing has been translated into Spanish, Portuguese, Slovenian, and Ukrainian. She lives in Bracebridge, Ontario.
