Tulla Murphy wondered if a whole town could be evil.

Tulla Murphy's life has unravelled. Spurred by a sudden and severe loss of hearing and a marriage on life support, she heads back to Parnell, the hometown she vowed never to return to.

Parnell is still a Petri dish of old secrets and simmering resentments. There, Tulla reconnects with her three childhood friends. Their friendship had once insulated them from the treacheries of the town and the enmities of the schoolyard, but Tulla isn't sure if it will protect them again.

Mysterious deaths soon occur – the first at the height of one of Parnell's most ferocious storms. As the body count mounts, Tulla is plagued by a growing suspicion that threatens loyalties and makes her question her memories. Is it possible that her friendships are more dangerous than the forces swirling around her?

A police investigator's murder has put Cullen and Cobb back on a twenty-five-year-old cold case.

It's a case that has haunted Cullen and Cobb for years – the murder of eleven-year-old Faith Unruh. And now the brutal killing of a police investigator who was similarly obsessed with the cold case has put P.I. Mike Cobb and former crime writing journalist Adam Cullen back on the killer's trail – and directly in the line of fire.

As the case is unfolding, Cullen is also desperately trying to get out from under the thumb of a local biker gang without ruining his relationship, getting arrested ... or worse.

David A. Poulsen has been a teacher, actor, cowboy, high school football coach, and – most of all – a writer. He is the author of more than twenty-five books. He lives on a ranch in the Alberta foothills near Calgary.

Fresh insights into the corridors of power and George Smitherman's personal life.

From modest beginnings, George Smitherman rose to become one of the most powerful politicians in Ontario and then was plunged back down to earth at the hands of one of the most notorious, Rob Ford. This memoir takes readers on the roller-coaster ride of his career and his personal life as a gay man struggling with the constraints of society and family.

Along the way, gain candid insights into the hardball politics of city hall and the provincial legislature, and the Liberal government under Dalton McGuinty, including accomplishments like prescription drug reforms and the green energy plan, and the so-called scandals of eHealth, Ornge, and gas plants. Learn how he lost the mayoral race to Ford but managed to rebound from that defeat, as well as from a personal tragedy.

George Smitherman began working in the backrooms of politics at a young age and rose to become a senior minister and deputy premier in the Ontario government. He lives in Toronto.

An exploration of trees in the Golden Horseshoe and the stories they tell.

Trees define so much of Canadian life, but many people, particularly in the Golden Horseshoe area of Ontario, don't know that much about them. Granted, it is harder here: there are more trees that are native to this area than anywhere else in Canada.

The great storytellers of the landscape, trees are looking glasses into the past. They speak of biology, ecology, and geology, as well as natural and human history. Through a greater understanding of trees, we can become more rooted to the land beneath our feet, and our place in it.

Paul O'Hara is a field botanist, landscape designer, and native plant gardening expert. He is the owner of Blue Oak Native Landscapes. Paul lives in Hamilton, Ontario.

Keeping secrets is a very bad idea.

Former teenage runaway and new single mother Nadia Armstrong moves to Kingston to turn her life around. But six months after she rents a low-end apartment, her body is found on a concrete slab at an isolated construction site.

Major Crimes begins piecing together her last days, uncertain if this is a case of suicide or murder. To make matters more difficult, a member of the team is leaking information to reporter Marci Stokes, putting Staff Sergeant Rouleau in a precarious position.

Meanwhile, Officer Kala Stonechild's niece, Dawn, is secretly corresponding with her father, who's out on early parole. Dawn's friend Vanessa is also keeping a dangerous secret — her relationship with an older man named Leo, who preys on young girls. And it's not long before he has Dawn in his sights.

Brenda Chapman's first Stonechild and Rouleau novel, Cold Mourning, was nominated for the Arthur Ellis Award for Best Crime Novel in 2015. She lives in Ottawa.

An incisive view of Toronto’s development over the last fifty years.

In Toronto Reborn, Ken Greenberg describes how the contours of a new Toronto can be seen. Focusing on the period from 1970 to the present, the book looks at how the work and decisions of citizens, NGOs, businesses, and governments have all combined to refashion Toronto.

Individually and collectively, their actions – renovating buildings and neighbourhoods, building startling new structures and urban spaces, revitalizing old cultural institutions and creating new ones, and sponsoring new festivals and events – have transformed the old postwar city, changing it into an exciting modern one.

Toronto, grafting itself onto old foundations, is experiencing a kind of rebirth – arising vertically above its old self.

Ken Greenberg is an urban designer, teacher, and writer, whose passion and advocacy for the city over the past decades has involved him in virtually every aspect of its remarkable transformation. He lives in Toronto.

"I'm cold and sick and afraid. I pray for reprieve. I long for solid ground. And I ask myself, What the hell was I thinking?"

Sue Williams, along with her partner, David, spent an improbable year sailing the North Atlantic. It wasn't a mid-life crisis. They weren't running from the law. But Sue, who claims she didn't have an adventure-seeking bone in her body, found herself thinking that living according to someone else's script can wear down the spirit. So, in the wake of a perfect storm of personal events, she decided it was time for them to get out of their grown sons' way and follow their dream.

Ready to Come About is the story of a lifelong dream realized – a dream that led them to realize that there is no gift more precious than the liberty to chart one's own course. And that risk is a good thing ... sometimes, at least.

Sue Williams earned a degree in occupational therapy from Queen's University, and practised OT for over thirty years. In 2016, she left the health care field to focus on writing. Sue lives in Guelph, Ontario.

The history you don't know is the most fascinating of all.

Waterloo, Ontario, could be any small Canadian community. Its familiar histories privilege the “great accomplishments” of those who built the institutions we know today: industry, government, and education. But what of those who were marginalized, weird, and wonderful – real people who lived between the boundaries of mainstream existence?

Waterloo You Never Knew reveals forgotten and little known tales of a community in transition and reflects on those lives lived in infamy and obscurity, by choice or by design. Meet the ex-slaves and cholera victims, the grave digging doctor, the séance-loving politician, the rumrunner, and the sorcery-practising healer.

Come inside. See the Waterloo you never knew, revealed.

Joanna Rickert-Hall is a social historian engaged in the unending search for arcane and overlooked histories. She is the 2015 recipient of the Jean Steckle Award for Excellence in Heritage Education. Joanna lives in Waterloo, Ontario.

A shocking tale of secrets, guilt, and clerical child abuse.

In 1978, Blackburn Hamlet is a typical suburban village in eastern Ontario, with French and English schools, a vibrant Catholic community, and a predator priest. When charismatic Father Sweet invites his favourite altar boy on a camping trip, his parents insist he go. Alone together in the woods, the two enter a battle of wits that will change their lives forever.

Years later, both grapple with choices they've made. As they struggle to redefine themselves in society, they reckon with changing morals, and a new century's view of religion.

Father Sweet is a timely and moving story about Canada's complicity in religious child abuse, unveiling not just dark personal secrets, but a large-scale conspiracy entangling children, families, and nations.

A blueprint for constructing responsible liberalism.

Constructing responsible liberalism that offers freedom and social justice is possible. But doing so begins by examining the history of liberal ideas and culture over the last two centuries, followed by a major overhaul of existing systems, including coming to terms with liberalism’s past and its major limitations, upgrading liberal economics, and preparing for technology disruption.

Rebuilding Liberalism combines a discussion about liberal ideas in a social context with political analysis, and builds a path forward that can ensure the survival of liberal society.

Guy Stanley has consulted for businesses and governments on public policy and has taught international management at American and Canadian universities, including the University of Connecticut and McGill. He lives in Montreal.

Lacey McCrae must bring closure to two grieving families while avoiding her past trauma.

When Zofia and her teenage daughter trip over an ice-covered corpse at a rented mountain chalet, ex-Mountie Lacey McCrae trades her Christmas shopping trip for Victim Services duty. While she supports the women through their police statements, the body is identified: Eric, a university student lost in a blizzard last month. Zofia believes Eric is trying to communicate urgently to her about his missing car. Skeptical as Lacey is of psychics, she knows the absent car and other details don't add up to an accidental death.

As Christmas gives way to New Year's, she must search the icy wilderness for another missing person. But Zofia blurts out Lacey's deepest secret, shaking her to the core. Can she uncover truths for two grieving families while evading her own buried trauma?

Is Canada going far enough in leading globally?

Canada may be the one country that can galvanize the international community to creatively use the law to protect the hard-won democratic ideals, human rights, and economic aspirations that have anchored (at times precariously) the international order since the Second World War.

Effective Canadian leadership will depend on Canada moving beyond lip service and rhetoric to concrete and practical action. And Canada will not only have to “up its game,” but also be willing to be seen doing so at home and abroad.

Through accessible, persuasive storytelling and analysis, Taking Up the Torch shows that Canada has a rare and unique opportunity to influence the future course of world events and the corresponding impact upon Canadians.

A man's pilgrimage becomes something from his darkest nightmares when secrets arise and ghosts haunt his path.

A woman has vanished on the Camino de Santiago, the ancient five-hundred-mile pilgrimage that crosses northern Spain. Daniel, an Irish expat, walks the lonely trail carrying his wife Petra's ashes, along with the damning secret of how she really died.

When he teams up to walk with sporty California girl Ginny, she seems like the perfect antidote for his grieving heart. But a nightmare figure begins to stalk them, and his mind starts to unravel from the horror of things he cannot explain.

Twists and turns echo along the ancient path they walk upon, and the lines start to blur between reality and madness; the lines that separate the truth from the lies we tell ourselves.

One of the great entrepreneurial success stories of Newfoundland and Canada.

Harry Steele was born in Musgrave Harbour, an isolated outpost on the eastern coast of Newfoundland. Harry went to university, joined the naval reserve, and became a lieutenant commander in the Royal Canadian Navy. He quit in 1974 – he didn't like the new green uniforms – and went into business.

Using money he made in the stock market and his wife Catherine's real estate investments, he bought control of struggling Eastern Provincial Airways. He made it a success and sold it to Canadian Pacific Airlines several years later. He was highly successful with his other investments, including the trucking and ferry service company Clark Transport and the radio broadcasting company Newfoundland Capital Corporation.

Harry Steele is a Newfoundland success story. He stays true to his roots, living in Gander, Newfoundland.

The story of how we as a nation collectively built promising national projects and are now selling them off to the rich.

For the first century after Confederation, Canadians collectively created significant public enterprises and programs that transformed this vast stretch of land into a successful nation, including power plants, coast-to-coast transportation systems, a nationwide postal service, and public health care and education systems.

But after more than a century as nation builders, we've spent recent decades downsizing or selling off these ambitious collective undertakings to private investors. These sweeping changes have been made in the name of fiscal necessity. But what's really driving them is the pressure exerted by key financial interests.

Linda McQuaig tells a sweeping tale of how our public programs and enterprises were first developed and how powerful interests are now manoeuvring to get control of them.

Linda McQuaig is a journalist and author of seven national bestsellers. Her 1995 book Shooting the Hippo was selected as one of the twenty-five most influential books of the past twenty-five years by the Literary Review of Canada. She lives in Toronto.

Is a national consensus on hydrocarbon development possible?

The ongoing debate in Canada over hydrocarbon development and its required market access exemplifies the political polarization in Canada. In Spite of Ourselves explores these tensions through economic, environmental, and political perspectives.

The Trudeau Liberals and the Alberta Notley NDP government have attempted to find a compromise that satisfies the concerns of British Columbia, First Nations, and environmentalists, but with the impasse on the Trans Mountain Pipeline expansion, hope for compromise might be threatened. Can Canada find a reasonable path forward?
